Mr. Arthur Lundahl

Dear Art:

Membership Applications and copies of a letter (25) stating some of the benefits of American Society of Photogrammetry membership, are enclosed.

The Membership Applications do not fully reflect the Society's policy with respect to billing new members. The Society will be happy, indeed, will welcome applications without attached remittance. We will bill the new member when his application is processed.

Some thoughts on membership in this specific year may be helpful. This is an "international year" and PHOTOGRAMMETRIC ENGINEERING will contain many papers that are to be presented at the International Congress. These papers are, in effect, summaries of our scientific progress in the past four years. Also, our journal will soon begin a series of articles, such as the Impact of Automation on Photogrammetry, which bear directly on the future of all of us in photogrammetry and photointerpretation.

Don't forget, Membership has many benefits including a reduced purchase price for our Manuals (the new Manual of Photogrammetry will soon be placed on sale), also the registration fee at the Annual Meeting is significantly lower for Members than for non-members.

I hope that you will be willing to have the enclosed applications distributed among your offices.

I sincerely appreciate your recent letter and particularly your suggestion regarding establishment of a speakers bureau. We have given some thought to the establishment of such a service. A difficult problem is the acquisition of appropriate illustrations. I would like very much to have an opportunity, at your convenience, to meet with you and discuss this aspect of the problem.

Thank you for your help and interest.

With best regards,

Memorandum

TO: Those engaged in the fields of photogrammetry and photointerpretation

FROM: President, American Society of Photogrammetry

SUBJECT: Why you should join our Society

The American Society of Photogrammetry is a learned Society, scientifically representing those of us who are engaged in the fields of photogrammetry and photointerpretation.

A scientific field and those who choose to engage in it prosper only to the degree that they may communicate their scientific findings--scientific communication is the prime function of the American Society of Photogrammetry.

Those who choose to actively participate in the administration and scientific activities of a society profit the most for they gain the confidence, respect and admiration of their colleagues. Membership alone qualifies you to participate but does not inform the society of your desire. Direct participation in the affairs of the Society thus also require that you make your willingness known.

Those who wish to contribute scientifically to the publications or meetings of the Society will find a ready and respected forum for their findings. The methods of submission are clearly outlined in the Society's Yearbook publication. Acceptance is based solely on scientific merit. You will find, however, sympathetic and competent editorial and technical help at your disposal.

Those of you who are scientifically curious and wish to keep abreast of new techniques and applications of these sciences will find that most pertinent developments are reported first, and in most detail, in our journal PHOTOGRAMMETRIC ENGINEERING. You will also find that the advice and experience of our technical committees is available to you upon inquiry. These technical committees are made up of dedicated members of this Society who are acknowledged leaders in our fields. Our Society also maintains a rapidly developing library of technical information; this library is for your use.

Those of you who wish only to partake of the economic fruits of scientific progress, may well reflect on the growth of these arts and sciences in the past three decades. This Society and its members have in this interval revolutionized mapping, changed this nations concept of intelligence gathering techniques, made possible observations of short lived and other phenomea such that have enhanced our nations scientific posture in all fields.

Our history suggests that you cannot make a better investment in your future than membership in this association.
